“ My all time favorite memory, Joe was on National Guard weekend. Me and my friend went to pick him up, they were all in back of the building. I yelled really loud attention, when he came to the car I asked him did you hear me yell. He goes pendeja that was you, we all got in attention formation. Then we all just stood there trying to figure out who yelled. Lol he just started laughing. Love You Brother

“ To my Aunt, Uncle, and Cousins. I wish I could be there to give you my condolences and hugs in person. There are no words that can describe the pain you are going through. My prayers have been with you during this difficult time. Prayers of comfort, peace, and in time-joy. Why joy? Because the joy of the LORD will be your strength. Joy has brought us out of the pit of grief and despair and I know GOD will do the same for you. Sending my love to you all. Mary Helen and Leo Villarreal

“ Back when we were kids, Uncle Joe was watching us (me, Kim, Steph, & Raymond) at his house and making us answer history trivia questions in his backyard. Every time someone got an answer wrong, he would punish us by making us do burpees, jumping jacks, push ups, etc. You could tell he enjoyed watching us suffer from a little exercise hahaha. I remember my mom telling me the next day that Bati and Gma got mad at Uncle Joe because Raymond and Steph were crying and in so much pain from being sore that they couldn't go to school lol. It was hilarious. I always remember that memory when I think about Uncle Joe. He was tough on the outside, but he had a big heart. He was a one of a kind uncle. Hope this brought some smiles and laughter to y'all. Love and miss you guys so much. -Mandy
